BRIGHTTV · CVM BRIEFING

Grow the subscription base by understanding who watches what, when.

A 20-minute view of viewers, sessions and content — built for the CVM team.

Data window: Jan – Apr 2016 · Times converted UTC → SAST · 9,995 sessions · 4,386 users

AGENDA

What we'll cover (20 minutes)

01 User & usage trends
Where the hours come from

02 Factors that influence consumption
Genre, time, day, demographics

03 Programming for low-consumption days
What to schedule on Mondays

04 Initiatives to grow the user base
6 CVM plays for this FY

AT A GLANCE

BrightTV in four numbers

SESSIONS

9,995

Jan – Apr 2016 (SAST)

UNIQUE USERS

4,386

≈ 2.3 sessions / user

TOTAL WATCH TIME

1,522 h

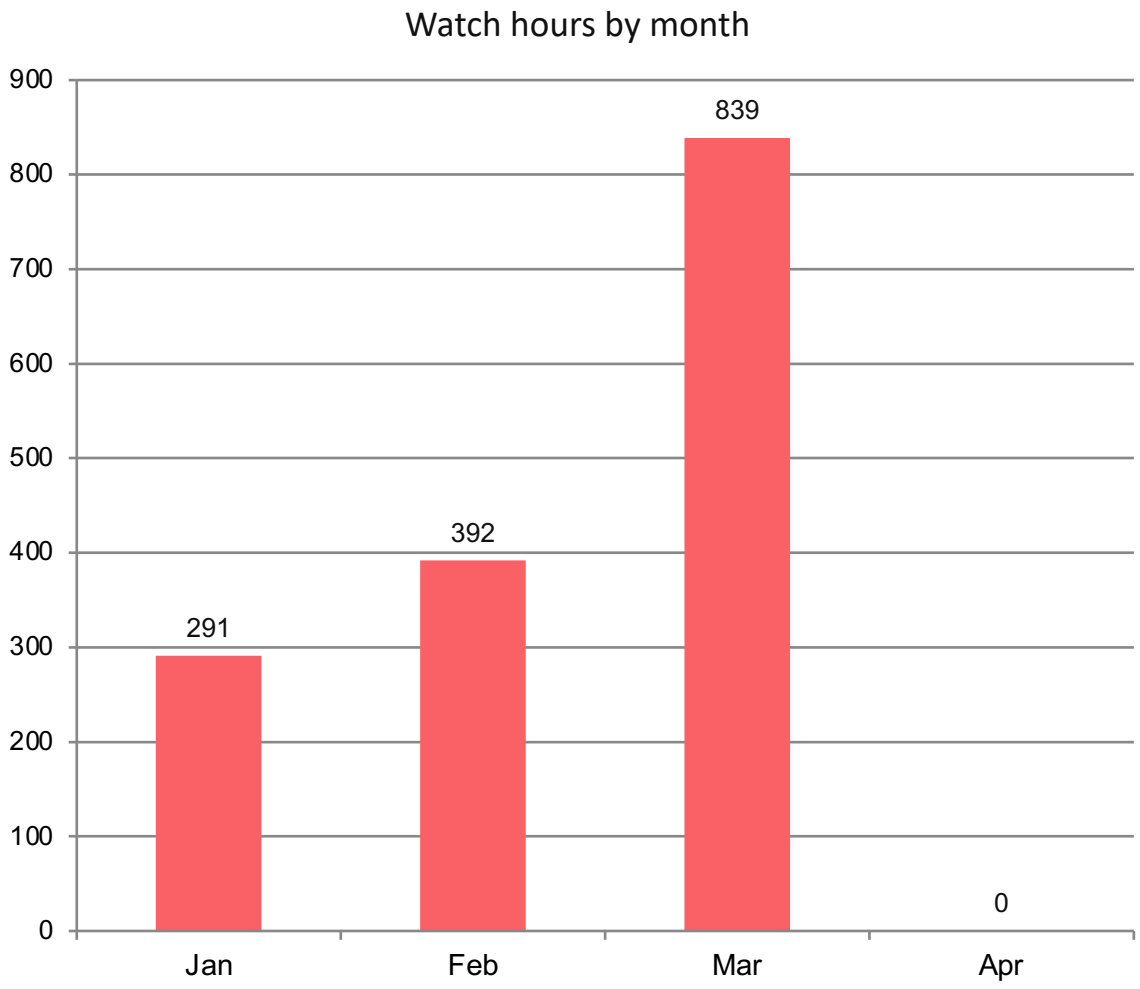
≈ 9.1 min / session

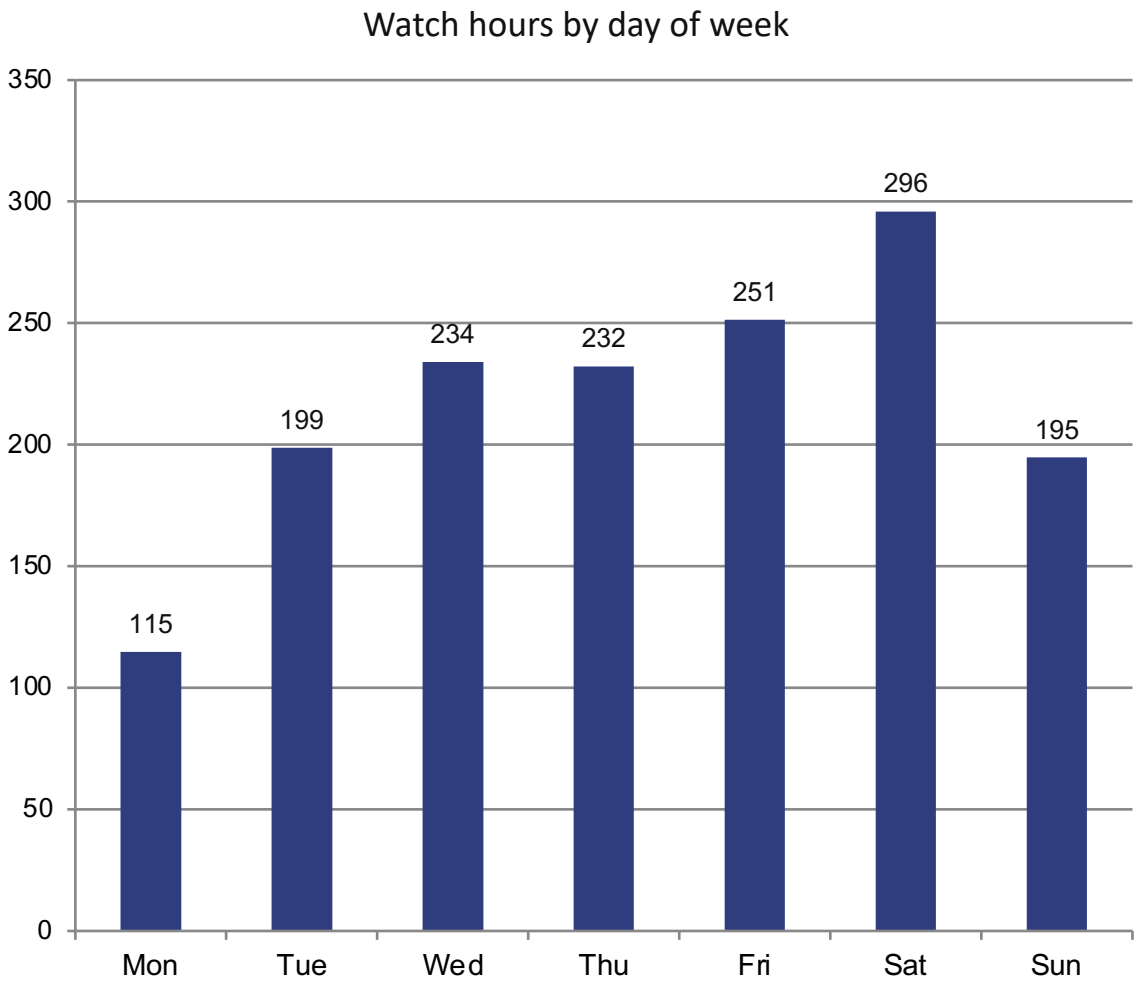
HIGH-ENGAGEMENT USERS

0.5%

Only 52 of 4,386

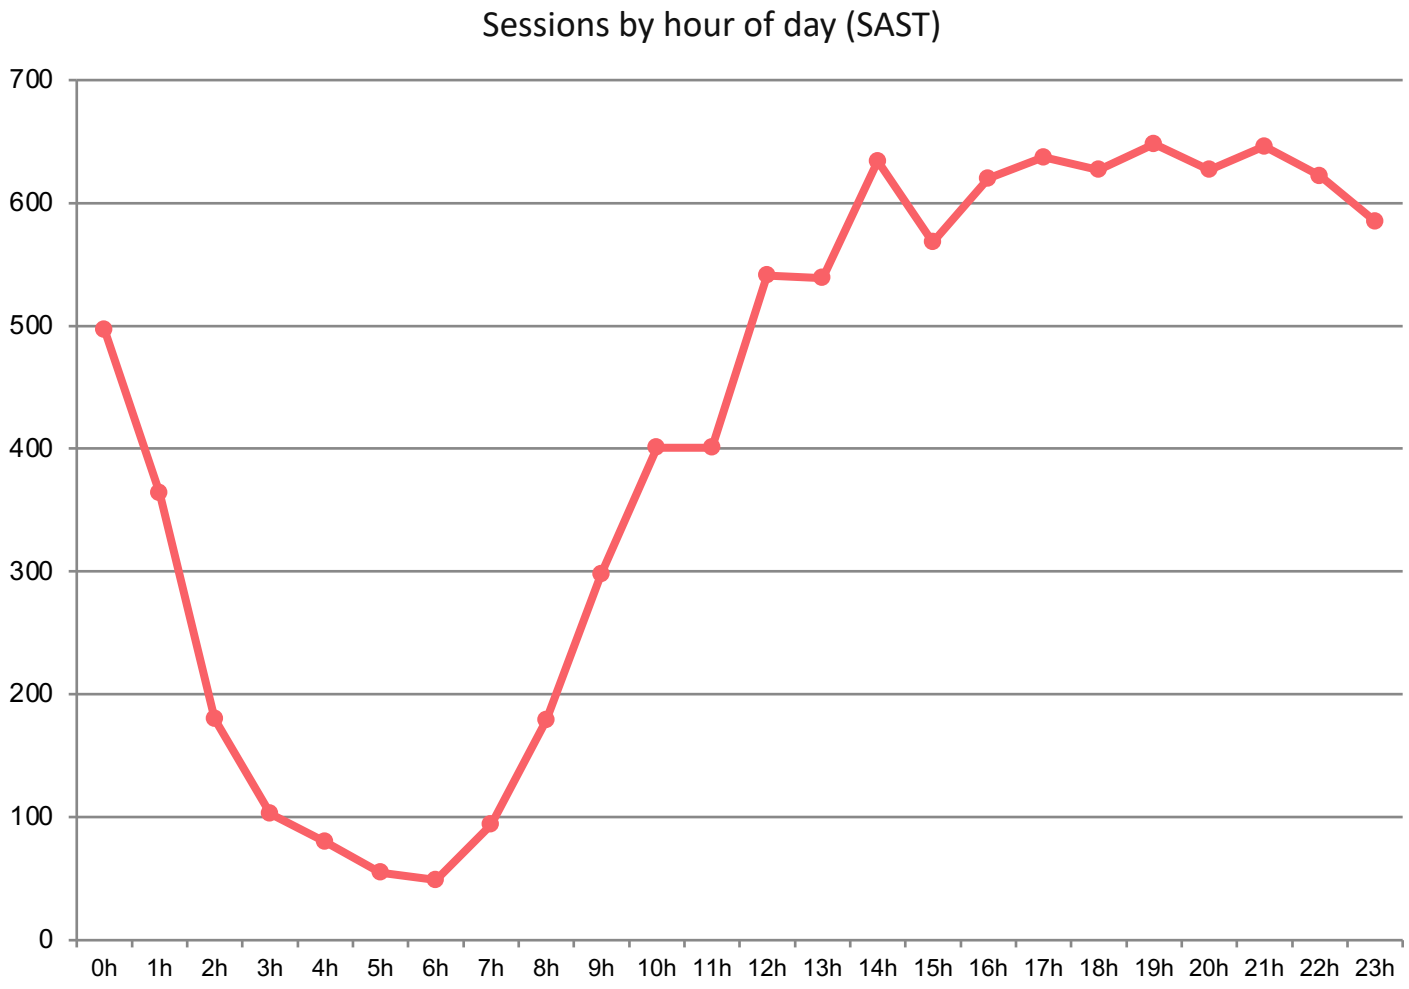
March more than doubled February — sport drove it

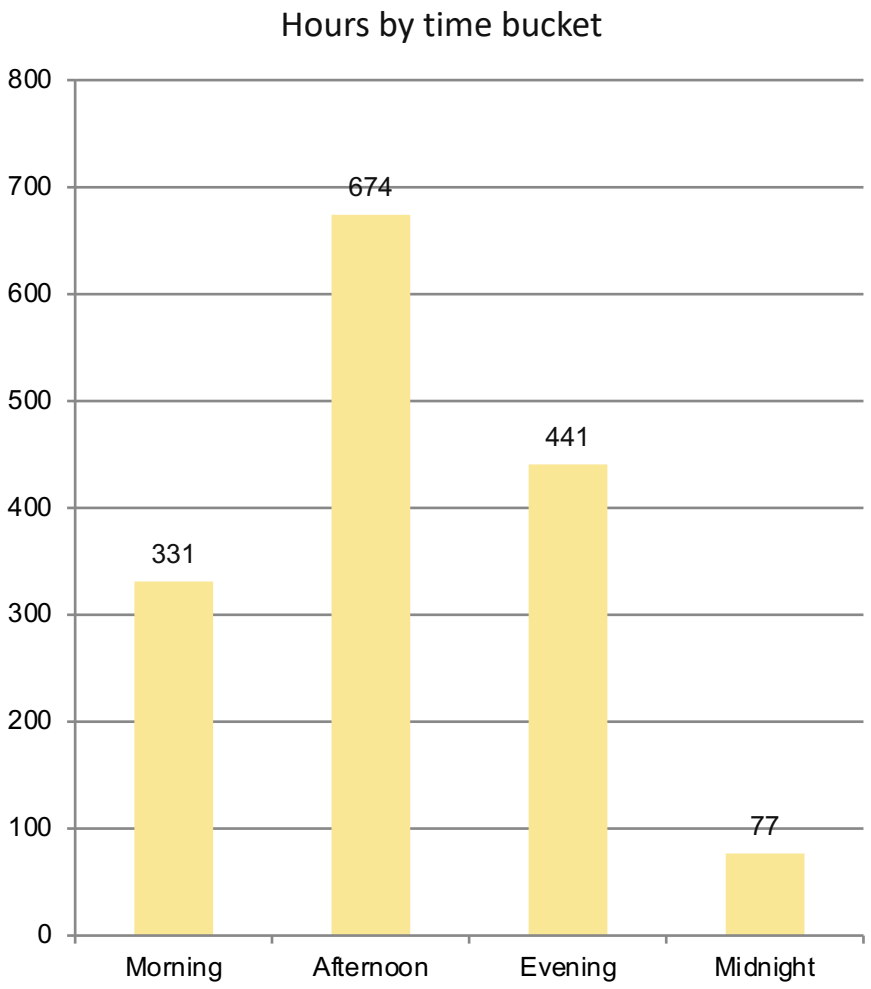




Saturday (296 h) is the single biggest viewing day; Monday (115 h) is the weakest.

Afternoon + evening own the day





AUDIENCE

The core BrightTV viewer

88%

Male

of sessions

50%

Adults 25–49

of sessions

38%

Gauteng

of total hours

38%

Black African

of total hours

Gender skew is extreme

88% male — female users are under-acquired.

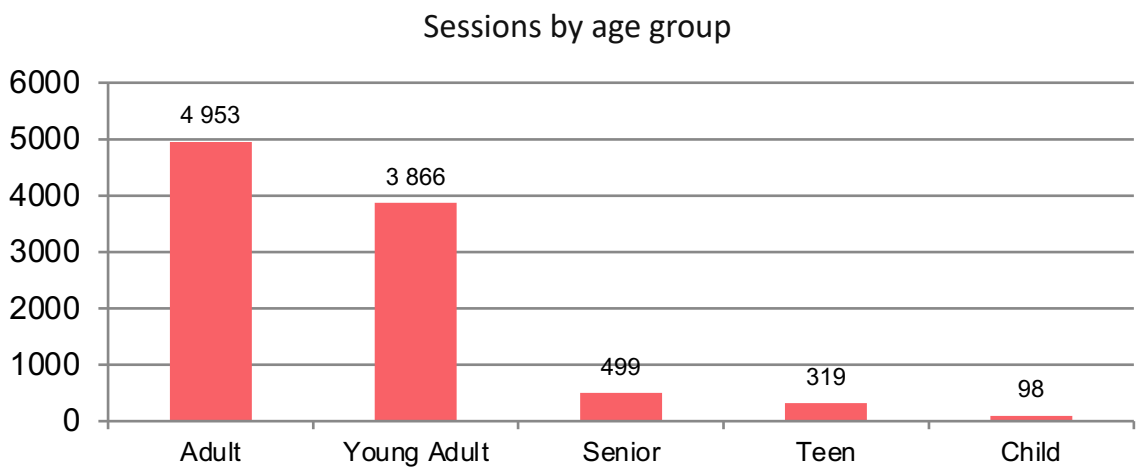
Children & teens under-index

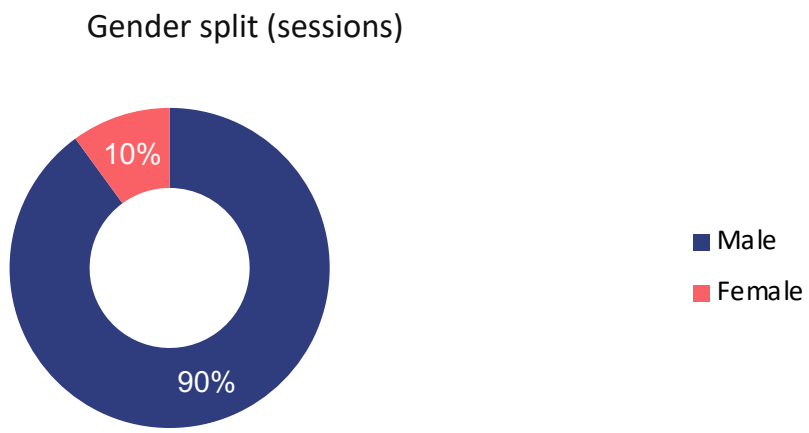
Only 4% of sessions — family bundle opportunity.

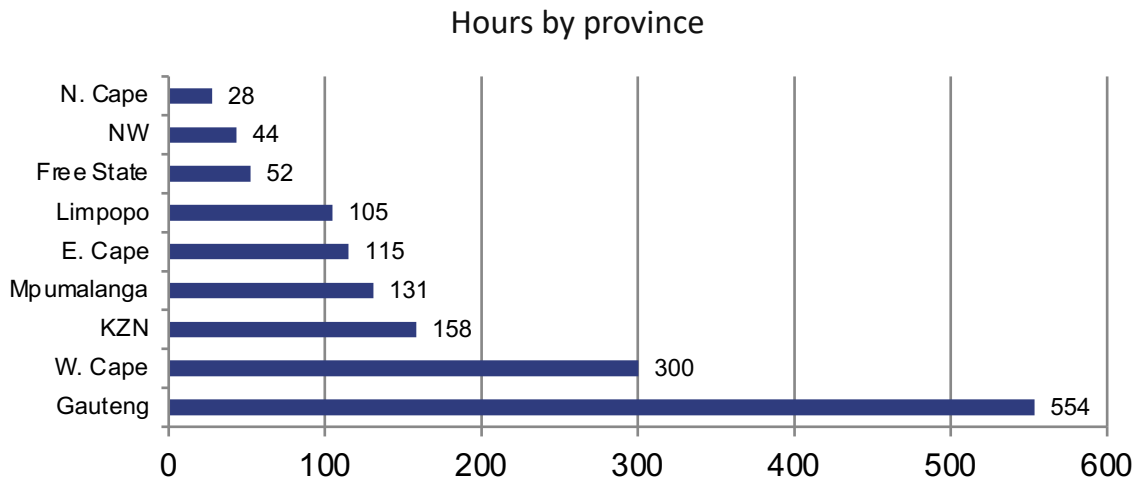
Geographic concentration

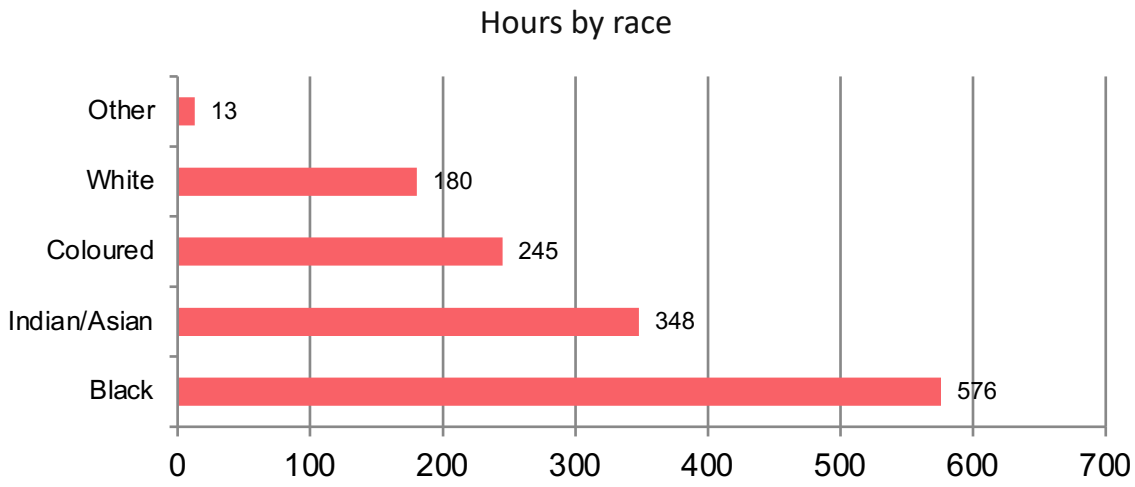
Gauteng + WC = 56% of hours; inland is open.

Who is watching, by demographics



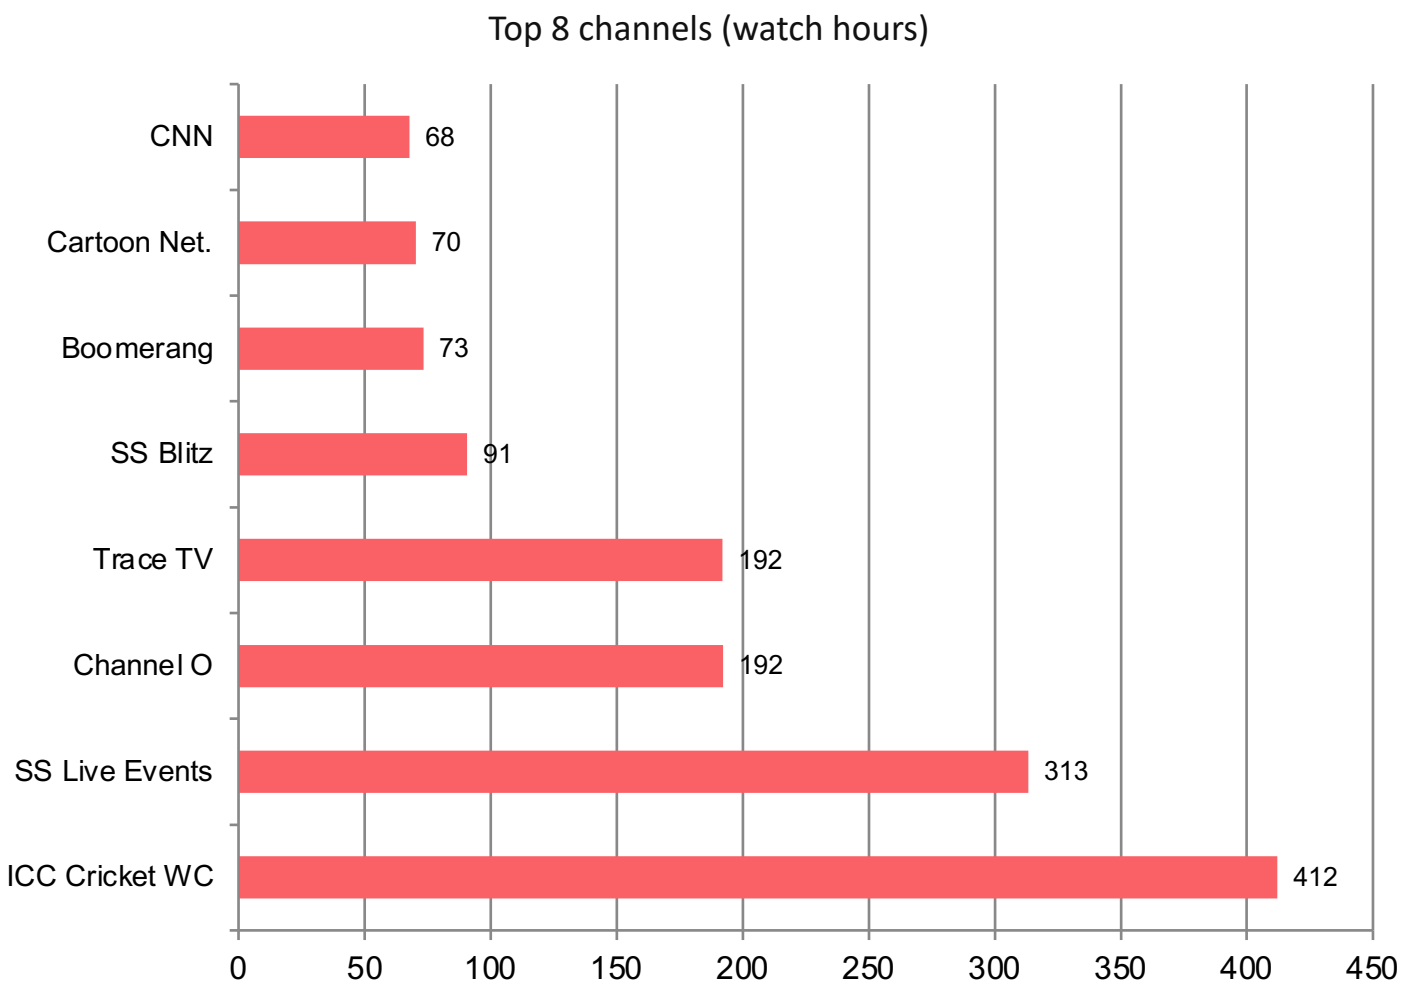






CONTENT

Sport dominates — ICC + SuperSport = ~48% of hours



Engagement reality

92%

of sessions are LOW consumption.

Only 0.5% of users (52 people) sit in the High-consumption tier — yet they account for ~8% of all hours. Moving Low → Medium is the single biggest CVM lever.

DRIVERS

What actually moves consumption

1 Genre > everything

Sport delivers 2–3× the avg session length of news/lifestyle. ICC Cricket alone drove the March spike (+114% vs Feb).

2 Time of day

Afternoon + Evening = 74% of all hours. Morning has decent sessions but short duration — programming gap.

3 Day of week

Saturday: longest sessions (10.9 min). Monday: shortest (7.2 min). This is a programming + promo problem, not a demand problem.

4 Demographics

Adults 25–49 male in Gauteng are the heavy core. But Children watch the longest sessions on average (12.9 min) — kids content is sticky.

PROGRAMMING

What to schedule on low-consumption days

Monday (115 h — weakest)

- Premiere new episodes of returning sport magazine shows.
- 'Monday Movie Night' — exclusive premiere window for one tent-pole title weekly.
- Push-notification 'Catch up on the weekend' highlights reel.

Tue – Thu (mid-week dip)

- Localised reality + drama in evening prime time.
- Themed nights: Doc Tuesdays, Comedy Wednesdays, Throwback Thursdays.
- Live studio shows tied to current news / sport.

Sunday family slot

- Family movie + kids morning block — leverage Children's 12.9 min avg session.
- Faith / lifestyle programming for senior segment (only 4% of hours).
- Co-viewing playlists to grow the female audience.

Acquisition & breadth

1. Sport-led acquisition funnel

Sport drove the March spike. Run a 7-day free trial during every major tournament with auto-conversion offers. Bundle 'Sport Lite' at lower ARPU to widen the top of funnel.

2. Family & female bundle

88% male, only 4% kids/teen. Launch a 'Family' tier with kids-safe profiles, Africa Magic novelas and lifestyle. Co-market with mobile providers in Gauteng & WC.

3. Geographic expansion

Limpopo, NW, Northern Cape together = <8% of hours. Province-specific marketing + telco data-zero partnerships to remove the cost-of-data barrier.

Engagement & retention

4. Re-engage Low Consumption (92% of sessions)

Behavioural triggers: if a user watches < 5 min in 7 days, send a personalised 'What to watch tonight' push using their favourite channel + day-of-week pattern.

5. Win the morning

Morning sessions exist but are short. Commission a morning news / breakfast block to convert habitual but light viewers into engaged daily users.

6. Retention via Engagement Score

Move users along Low → Medium → High. Today only 0.5% are High Consumption. A 1pp shift = ~44 super-users worth of incremental hours; tie to loyalty rewards & exclusive drops.

BOTTOM LINE FOR THE CEO

BrightTV's growth wedge = live sport for acquisition,

family & female content for breadth, and behavioural CVM to convert the 92% of low-consumption sessions into loyal subscribers.

Thank you · Questions?